GREENBRIAR

Fuquay Springs High School . . .

In the years that come, we may look back over the opportunities and achievements of students here at Fuquay Springs High School. We have only to follow the road of education opened with the right keys. These keys, obtained by learning, serving, and participating, may lead to happiness, self-satisfaction and a foundation on which we can build great things. This is the unwritten section of our GREENBRIAR. This, the challenge of forming our lives in the ways we have learned, is what we have prepared for during these years.

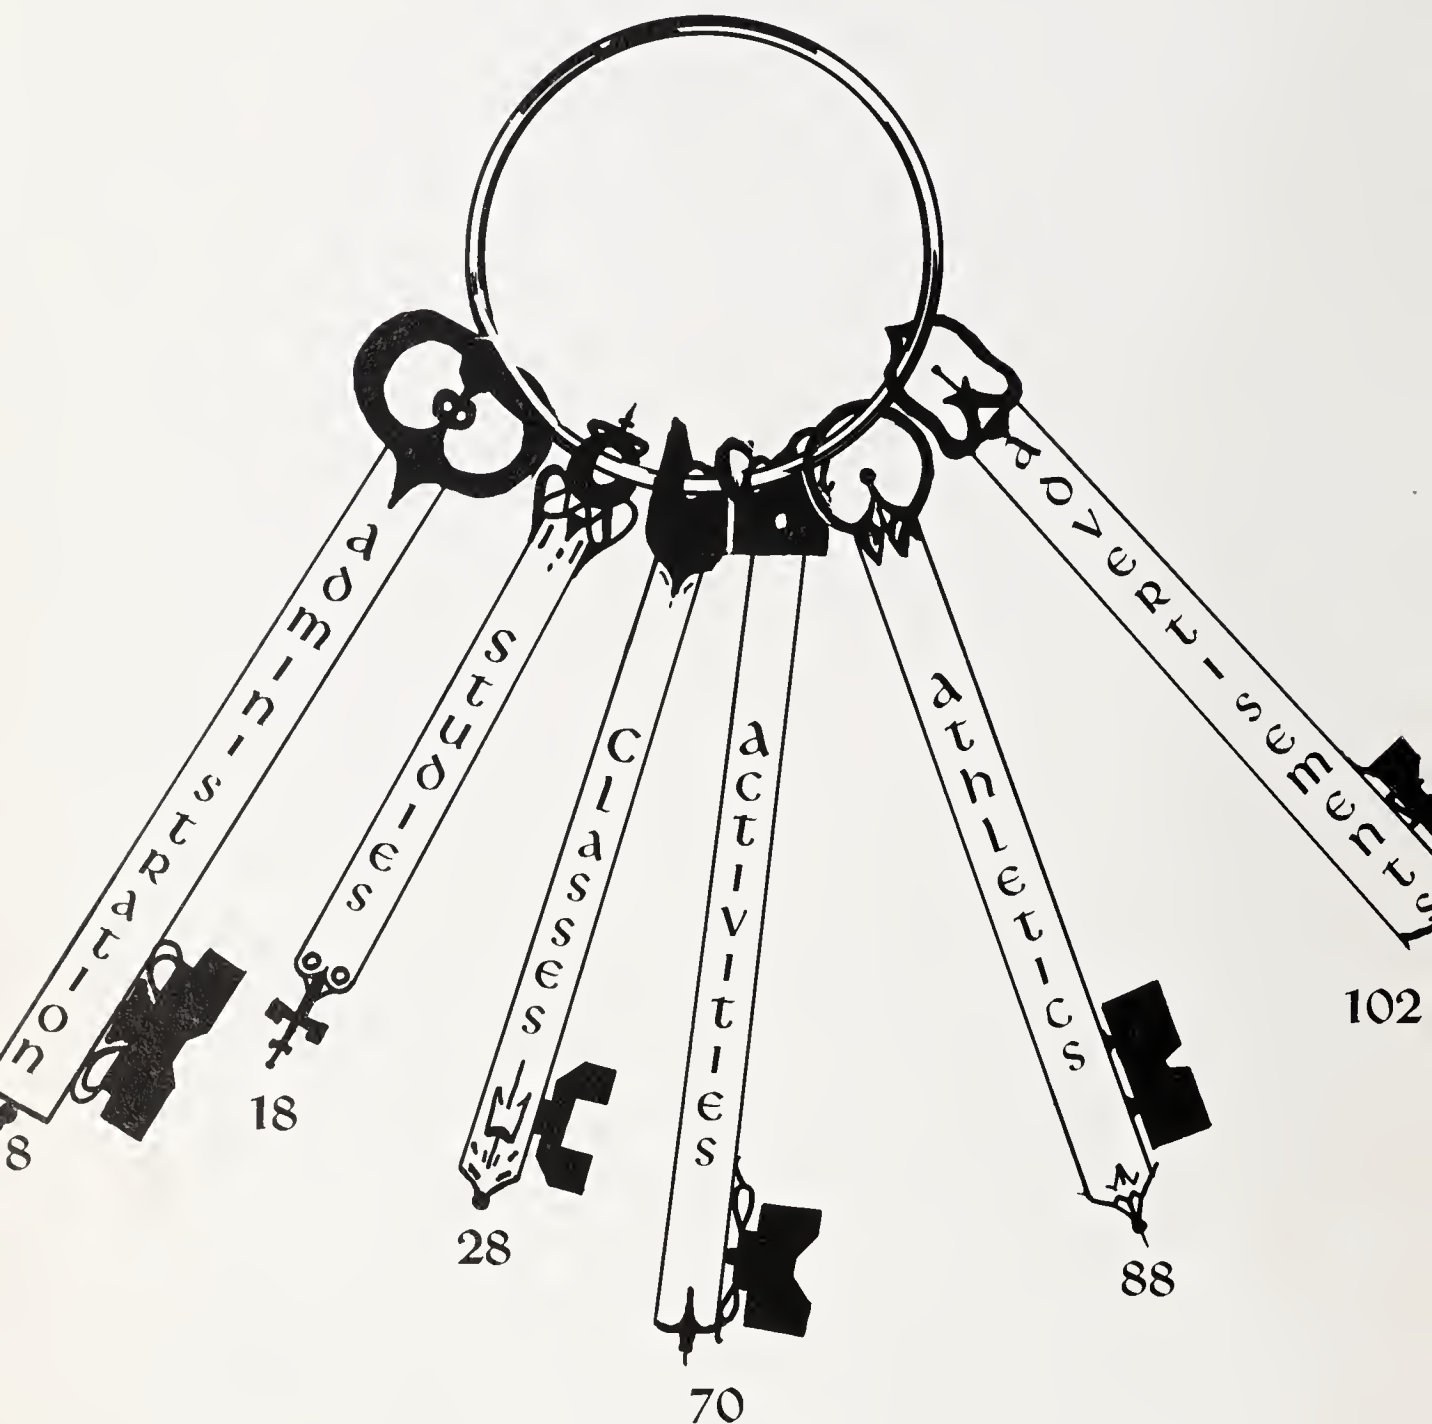

Just as the graduate follows a road to higher places, so must each student at Fuquay Springs High School be guided to maintain high ideals of thinking and living.

Our 1961 GREENBRIAR is, then, two-fold: the record of another wonderful year at Fuquay High and the prelude to an unknown but joyfully anticipated future.

... holds the keys to our future

Keys to unlock our future

Mrs. Mabel Council

With your welcome smile, your sincere interest, and your excellence both as a teacher and as a devoted friend, you, Mrs. Council, have given us a most vital key to our future. For your untiring efforts in the interest of progress for us; for being an understanding and cheerful person; and for your helpfulness to all those who seek your aid and advice, we, the senior class, do proudly and gratefully dedicate to you this edition of the GREENBRIAR.

A welcome smile for every student

Principal

You who leave us at the close of this year are graduating into a world divided in direction and ideology; political, economic, social, and moral. You will live in times of constant danger of the extermination of all living things on this earth; yet, these same times will produce for the human race the opportunity to use man's abundant storehouse of knowledge in providing for all peoples throughout the world; peace, plenty, love, and respect for each member of the human race.

You have had the opportunity of becoming equipped to play your full part in the challenging work which lies ahead. You have known the friendship and guidance of helpful teachers; you have learned many of the primary lessons of life; and above all, you have had the opportunity of learning respect, self-discipline, and social responsibility. We hope you have learned the honor and humility of honest toil—a job well done.

You are a part of a new American generation. The freedom you have is yours to destroy or strengthen, as you see fit. I cannot say how you might live. I can say only, that if you live in accordance with the principles of God's teachings and the fundamental principles and concepts of Americanism, your freedom will remain unsullied. On this basis the world of the future will be your world and your generation will carry the banner of human progress to the highest pinnacle that civilization has ever known. Even the glorious past of this great nation will fade in the light of your achievements if you but remain true to God and the principles upon which your government was founded. Through hard and determined work, sacrificial effort, and love and respect for man's individual dignity and rights; you will erect the structure of life, and peace and progress which was envisioned by the God of our Fathers when He placed the handiwork of men upon this Earth.

"If you would have peace go forth into the busy world and love it. Interest yourself in its life, and partake of it. Mingle kindly with its joys and sorrows. Strive to do for men, rather than covet their possessions." Meet everyone on the broad pathway of good faith and good will; see to it that no advantage shall be taken by either side but that all shall be in fairness and respect for the other's rights, and as an unknown poet said: let us,

"Weep not for the vanished ages
With their Great heroic men,
Who live on history's pages,
Or dwell in the poet's pen.

For the grandest times are before us,
And the world is yet to see,
The noblest worth of this great earth
In the men that are to be."

H-Help! Judy Rowland wonders how she can condense all that information into one small term paper.

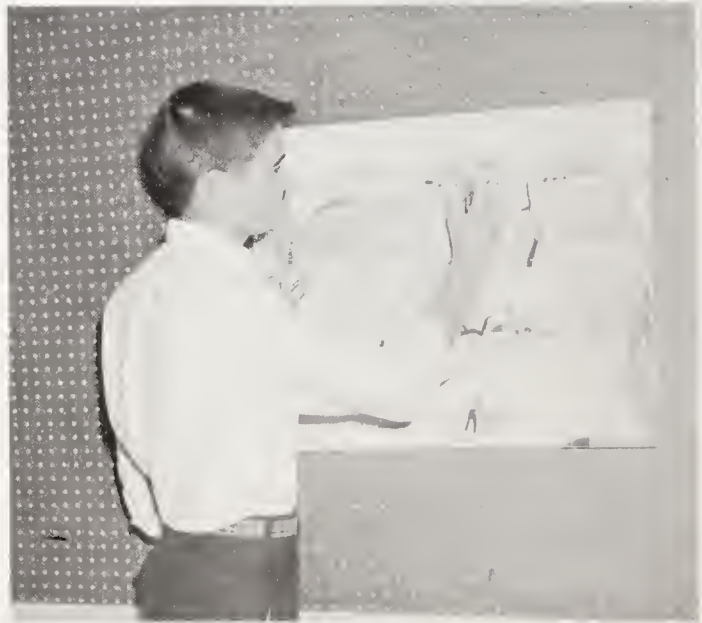

"Here's how it's done," George Powell shows Gaye Elliot the correct way to fold a business letter.

The field of English encompasses a wide range of areas. Grammar, literature, and public speaking all play their roles in the classroom. The study of great literature gives an appreciation of the vast panorama of man's creative thought. The study of grammar develops facility in correct written and spoken expression. Through classroom practice, public speaking is encouraged and improved.

Candice Harris explains to Ronnie Coats, "'Them-selves' is a reflexive pronoun in this sentence."

... A new kind of book report: Reginald Shaw completes his poster on a travelogue.

x's and why's

Any brilliant suggestions from the class? Dell Russum ponders the unknown quantity.

Ann Judd, Mike Cotten, and Lethro Wrenn create a locus graft in plane geometry.

The blind leading the blind: Mike Owens discusses solid geometry with his classmates.

Seeking to prepare its students for the extensive opportunities now open in Mathematics, Fuquay Springs High School offered diversified courses on progressive levels which acquainted them with the principles and practical application of math. Freshmen tackled Algebra I and general math with expressions of amazement, while seniors and sophs struggled with triangles and theorems. Algebra II, with its difficult equations and endless word problems, brought added worries to the juniors. For business-minded students, business arithmetic was also offered.

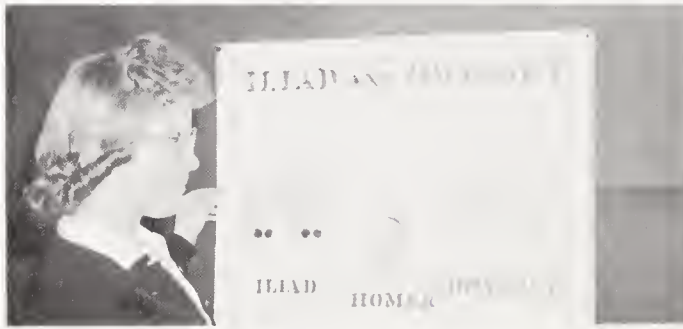

What a quandary! Judy Dudley strikes a typical pose in Algebra II

Passports

Mr. Pate Fish briefs economics students on some technical points about insurance.

Through social studies we gained essential knowledge with which to combat future problems. In economics and sociology, seniors analyzed our economic standing and their own relationships with others. During first period—United States History, juniors tried desperately to take notes and listen at the same time. Perhaps the geography-government students, who combined geographical facts with a study of governmental structure, may even produce a future President! Sophomores, in an attempt to reach World War II before the end of the year, learned about the rise and fall of ancient civilizations in world history.

Phyllis Johnson reviews her study of Homer's classics.

"If I were 21, I'd vote for Kennedy," Ken Moore discusses his candidate's finer qualities in American History.

"Now this seems to be a crucial spot!" John Talley, Pearl Johnson, and Robert Powell study the Congo.

to understanding

Jeanne Farabow, Kay Keith, and Jimmy Stephens increase their fluency in the language lab.

"¿Como esta usted?" Mary Olive Johnson and Skipper Phelps exchange greetings in Spanish.

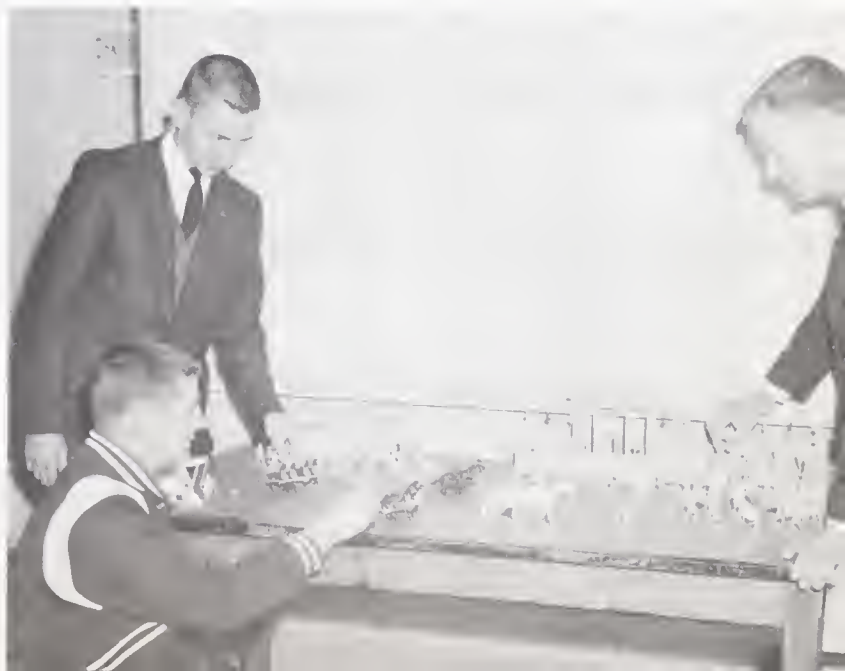

Whether the language be "dead," romantic, or continental, its study will prove useful to all students in the future, if not immediately. Through the three languages offered at Fuquay, students became acquainted with the beliefs, customs, and feelings of other countries and received an introduction to their history and culture.

A future in linguistics can develop into international scope, and Fuquay has well prepared any student who might enter such a field through courses in French, Latin, and Spanish.

Jimmy Betts ponders the crossword puzzle in LA JEUNESSE.

"Say, Guys, that was some slave market!" These Latin students find their model of Ancient Rome quite intriguing.

from atoms . . .

A deft touch, a little patience, and a lot of accuracy—Wesley Cotten and David Pope experiment in the laboratory.

Elizabeth Powell finds that a homemade barometer can be extremely accurate.

With two fully-equipped laboratories, students of biology, general science, chemistry, and physics had the world of science at their fingertips. Sophomores developed strong stomachs for dissecting frogs, while juniors and seniors struggled with formulas and equations. These classroom phases of study were highlighted by individual projects.

From these courses emerged, perhaps, no Pasteurs or Einsteins, but a group of students well-versed in science fundamentals.

Strong stomachs, a requirement! Jimmy Howard and Elizabeth Engle reluctantly dissect their frog in biology.

Tilley Adams and Tommy Cloer discover a wealth of physics principles through this simple pendulum experiment.

Since Patsy Stephens has a real knack for shorthand, she is certain to be an efficient stenographer.

Proving his cash with actual bank balance presents a problem for Graham Tunstall.

Typing for the school counselor gives Lynn Stephenson practical experience as a secretary.

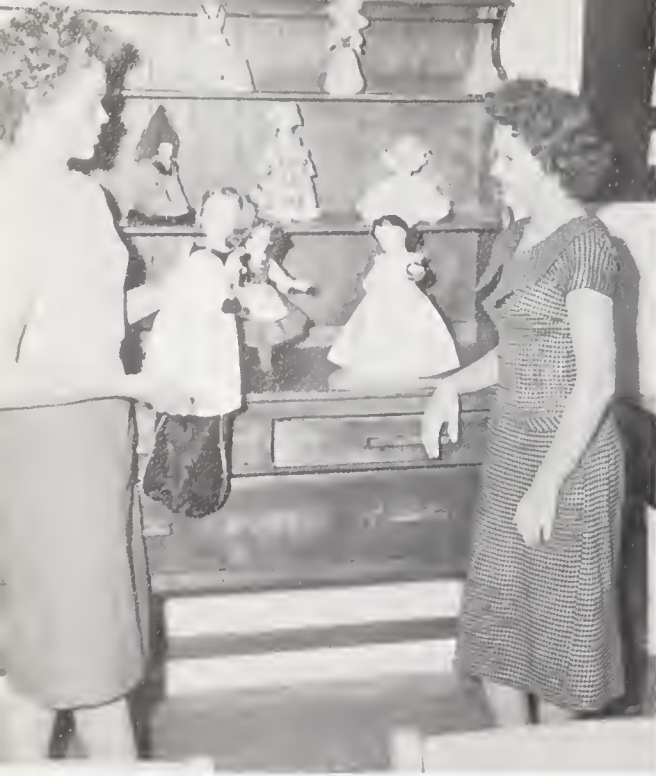

Do you need money? Would you like a part-time job? Accountants, typists, and secretaries can always find good jobs if they have the necessary qualifications. There is a great demand for young people in the field of business; however, they can not only be good in their chosen fields, they must be experts. Courses, such as Typing I and II, general business, shorthand, bookkeeping, and practice in operating machines, are offered to students at Fuquay High entering the field of business.

Faye Honeycutt calculates her daily bank deposits.

Lillie Ruth Dupree and Mary Ann Spivey examine the dolls they fashioned in historic costuming.

Too many cooks don't spoil the cake! Becky Arrington samples Sandra Stephens'.

Donna Ellis receives a facial from Mrs. Farnell as Cheryl Porter and Dianne Ellis take mental notes.

The reward of a thing well done is to wear it. Sarah Adams models her own creation.

in Vocations

"Watch those fingers, Boys," cautions Mr. Edwards, as he explains the use of a power saw.

Jerry Holland and Simson Currin learn the meaning of the F. F. A. emblem from Mr. Cay.

The in-school program of vocational agriculture at Fuquay Springs High deals mainly with the preparing of boys—especially farm boys—for the vocations in agricultural services, production, and processing. The boys learn the principles and applications in such areas as farm mechanics, livestock and crop production, farm management, and rural leadership through class instruction and demonstrations, farm shop laboratories, field trips, FFA activities, and through their Supervised Farming Programs.

Mr. Manley and Herbert Hilliard's father assist Herbert in his supervised farming project.

As a part of their forestry study, senior students measure the board feet in these trees.

... and this is the SENIOR STORY

Our rings at last! Fletcher Woolard and Barbara Dickens admire O. B. Pope's senior trademark.

How fast the doors of high school close behind us. To the graduating class, these doors are barred forever. We no longer possess their keys; but let us remember, each door has its own keyhole through which we, the Senior Class, might view again the happy days which each of us experienced behind these portals.

Now let us go all the way back to the very first door of high school—a green door, for we were a little “green” about the ways of high school life. Peeping through the keyhole, we see a green and white pompon. Our class officers, Skipper Phelps, Nancy Buffaloe, Naney Phelps, and Tilley Adams certainly kept us busy selling those things to provide money for our freshman party.

Then there is a football, for we were well represented on the football team that year and the basketball team too. Bill Rogers and Robert Brooks fought long and hard their first year as varsity players. Kay Lee, Nancy Phelps, and Judy Wagstaff, were cheered along by us all as they slid across court in their first high school basketball game.

And now? An ear of corn—oh yes, a symbol of the F.F.A., just one of the numerous clubs, F.H.A., F.T.A., Latin Club, and Library Club, which we freshman were glad to join. Well, there's a baton—Kathy Ann Talley was our one and only majorette that year.

Let's go to the next door—our sophomore year, quite a happy year for all. What do you see this time? Well, that our class officers were Kay Lee, Robert Dale, Jo Carole Hobgood, and Betsy Thomas, and that everyone was rejoining their old clubs again this year. Bill Rogers and Judy Wagstaff were working hard on the Student Council. Judy was also twirling a baton this year with Kathy Ann Talley. That's that old pigskin again. We did have quite a few athletes that year. There were Donald Clayton, Bill Rogers, Robert Brooks, Dickie Powell, and Skipper Phelps on the football team, and Ronnie Spivey, Johnnie Poe, and Whitt Lawhorn on the basketball team. Ronnie, together with Tommy Cloer, made the baseball team. Bill Rogers, Bob Stephens, and Dickie Powell were members of our school's first track team. Judy Rowland and Ella Wayne Russum were added to the basketball team to help the other girls pick splinters!

A white lace fan—Yes, we remember that. Part of our class was quite excited, dressed as southern ladies and gentlemen who were waiters and waitresses at the Junior-Senior Prom that year.

Do not tarry; on to the third door and its locked-up treasures. Our third and junior year certainly proved to be a very hard and busy one. There's a magazine and candy box. Money—this was our goal when we started selling all those magazine subscriptions and boxes of candy—money for the Junior-Senior Prom. Sherill Dean, Judy Rowland, Barbara Allen, and Sandra Taylor, our class officers, were behind us all the way. There was the junior play, “Just Ducky”, which made loads of money for us. Dickie Powell, Mike Owens, Sarah Adams, Nancy Mudge, Sara Capps, Skipper Phelps, Kathy Ann Talley, Judy Pleasant, Wayne Brett, Sherill Dean, Robert Brooks, and June Smith were a few who helped make it such a success.

The Beta Club induction ceremony—fifteen of us made it. The fortunate few were Sarah Adams, Kathy Ann Talley, Charlotte Holland, Nancy Buffaloe, Sylvia Barbour, Sara Capps, Judy Wagstaff, Jerry Johnson, Ella Wayne Russum, Linda Ayscue, Nancy Phelps, Bill Rogers, Bob Stephens, Robert Brooks, and Mike Owens. A megaphone—we finally had two cheerleaders from our class, Sally Payne and Jo Carole Hobgood. That old pigskin came flying through the air that year too, with Bob Stephens making the squad. The basketball team gained another member of our class, Sherill Dean. The girls' team could boast of two new members, Sylvia Barbour and Gloria Jean Myatt.

Bill Rogers, Student Council Vice-President, was getting in shape for leading the school next year. Nancy Buffaloe was the other representative from the junior class.

There's an old lantern. How could we ever forget those two magnificent days in Williamsburg. I bet we won't for a long time to come.

Chop sticks—that long-awaited night finally arrived. The Junior-Senior Prom was worth all the work and energy we had put into it. The gym even looked like "Oriental Gardens!"

A green sash—oh yes, marshals for graduation that year were Jerry Johnson, Chief, Bob Stephens, Sylvia Barbour, Linda Ayscue, Mike Owens, Sarah Adams, Bill Rogers, Nancy Buffaloe, and Robert Brooks.

Let's hurry to the last door and have a look. A ring with a ruby stone is first in view. What else, but our class rings; and did we ever feel like seniors when we got them. Diekie Powell, Johnnie Poe, Charlotte Holland, and Nancy Phelps, our class officers, can be seen shining theirs. There's a torch—symbol for the Student Council. Mike Owens, Kay Lee, Skipper Phelps, Sandra Taylor, Nancy Buffaloe and Bill Rogers were all representatives in that organization.

An annual—Jerry Johnson had worked long and hard as editor of the GREENBRIAR to make our annual the best yet.

A gavel—presidents seemed to be one thing we did have in our senior class. There was Donald Clayton, F. F. A. president; Nancy Mudge, F. H. A. president; Sarah Adams, F. T. A. president; Sally Payne, Library Club president; Robert Brooks, Monogram Club president; Kathy Ann Talley, Beta Club president; Skipper Phelps, Bus Drivers' Club president; and Bill Rogers, Student Council president.

A chrysanthemum—yes, Homecoming night will be an unforgettable event for us and for our Queen Nancy Buffaloe and her senior attendant, Nancy Phelps.

Let's not forget those who have passed through these doors and left us for other destinations. Just a few of our classmates who have changed their addresses are Robert Lee Dale, now at military school in Georgia; Donald Davis, Florida-bound; Cassie Powell, Campbell College Co-ed; and Larry and Jerry Coats, now at Lillington.

There are our Junior-Senior Prom and graduation yet to come, and then this fourth door shall be looked to us; but after these four, there are many, many more to come which will at one time or another open and close behind us. But, remember, each locked door has a key by which all our happiest moments and memories may be unlocked and retraced forever.

Class poem

Came the watcher,
Inconspicuous, unnoticed
To intermingle, to observe, to remember.

This group, chosen at random
Thrown together as an experiment of Fate,
To judge the results given the best
Of environment, of guidance, of everything;

Of the bad mixed with the good,
Of the poor with the rich,
Of the slow with the near-genius,
Of the talkative with the quiet,
The wild with the meek,
The impulsive with the logical,
The forward with the withdrawn,
The dominant with the recessive;

Being prepared, on the eve of their departure
From the warmth of youthful companionship,
For the unfamiliar task that lies ahead.

I, The watcher, and they, the doers,
Being readied to go forth,
To walk, to crawl, to run,
To rush blindly,
To touch each segment in the jigsaw puzzle of life.

Class Prophecy

I, prophetess of the Senior Class of 1961, now begin the unraveling of the deeds of the honored ones as they appear in 1971.

First I will tell you of Mike Owens, who is the president of a large toupee company in Madrid. He has just left for work with two models, Jim Bullock and Joe David Stephens. Two class members who are also presidents of companies are Skipper Phelps, who has just made his second million by manufacturing fibreglas boats, and Dickie Powell, who owns Powell's Pickle Packing Plant.

Many of our class are still living in Fuquay. Cathie Talley, Gloria Jean Myatt, Jane Alphine, and Judy Sherron are nurses at the hospital and, I hear, are having a wonderful time! Richard Smith, Franky Sandy, and Colon Hobby have gone into the furniture business. They buy old furniture and sell antiques. Judy Pleasant is the owner of the Tiny Tots Nursery. I understand that her business has grown so much that she has hired Dorothy Vaughan and Jean Reardon to help control the children. Judy Payne, a recent graduate of the University of Miami, is the town's first full-time archery instructor. Some of our classmates attending her night classes are Kenneth Bowling, Linda Lucas, and Mary Ann Spivey. Chamber of Commerce president, O. B. Pope, has announced plans for an Ice Review. Stars of the show will be Judy Wagstaff, Sandra Taylor, Linda Sherman, and Nancy Turner.

Some of our class have left Fuquay to become famous. For example, Rebecca Blackburn has just released a terrific album, "Fluent Greek in Three Lessons," which will be a hit, I am sure, with Fletcher Woolard's Greek students at Fuquay High. Betsy Thomas and Lynn Stephenson are two of America's best-known designers. Latest reports indicate that Betsy-Lynn clothes are giving Dior some real competition. Joe Baker, internationally famous polo player, is a member of the 1972 Olympic team. He has purchased one of Wayne Brett's thoroughbreds to begin practicing. Nancy Buffaloe is designing a new United Nations Building. She has taken several courses in psychological architecture under Professor Lillie Ruth Dupree of Ohio State University, so it should be interesting to see what she and her co-workers, Faye Honeycutt, Sylvia Howell, and Brenda Jones will design. Johnnie Poe, one of America's leading novelists, along with illustrator June Smith, has written the book Make Those Baskets Count, currently number one on the best seller list. Nancy Phelps, the famous American connoisseur, has sold her talked-about potato salad recipe to Faye Walker who said, "It's the greatest thing that ever happened to the potato." Top auto designer Jimmy Betts has created Jibe, the car that is "too, too much" in the opinion of Jerry Johnson, sports car enthusiast. Jerry recently lost the Northern 400 to Oscar Pierce, another sports car enthusiast, who purchased a Jibe before Jerry did. Kathy Talley, vocalist, has just returned from a tour with Bob Stephens and his Southern Five composed of Jerry McLean, Halca Banks, Wayne Black, Charlie Carden, and Robert Brooks. Brenda Sutton, well-known lawyer, is making headlines by arguing a case in favor of Phillip Utley, who was charged with passing a truck on the right side of the road. Tilley Adams, who has accepted the leading role in Margaret Hinson's new movie, "I Passed for Yellow," has just left for Japan to brush up on her Japanese accent. Sarah Adams works as an elevator operator in a Hollywood studio in order to see such celebrities as Sylvia Barbour, top writer in the field of entertainment, and actresses Barbara Allen and Barbara Dickens, those consistent Oscar winners. Sally Payne is the head surgeon of a large animal hospital. Working with her are Phyllis Langdon, surgeon; Sara Capps, head nurse; Nancy Mudge, dietitian; and Kay Lee, secretary. Kay is also the secretary of Judy Rowland, who heads a toy manufacturing company. Cynthia Stephenson is the new head of the Woman's Division of the Police Department. Patsy Holland, Gloria Saunders, and Whitt Lawhorn have been named co-chairmen for the 1971 fight against litterbugs.

I know you'll be surprised to hear where some of us are!

Nome, Alaska—Ella Wayne Russum is gathering information for her forthcoming novel, How to Beat the Heat.

Sahara Desert—Bill Rogers is making enormous profits operating a soda shop.

Miami, Florida—Patsy Stephens, the 1971 water skiing champion, is getting a glorious tan in the brilliant sunshine.

Yellowstone Park—Sherill Dean has been appointed to time Old Faithful between eruptions.

Darjeeling, Nepal—Ronnie Spivey is preparing to climb Mount Everest alone. Good luck, Ronnie!

Venice, Italy—Donald Clayton has made a name for himself as the only English-singing gondolier in Venice.

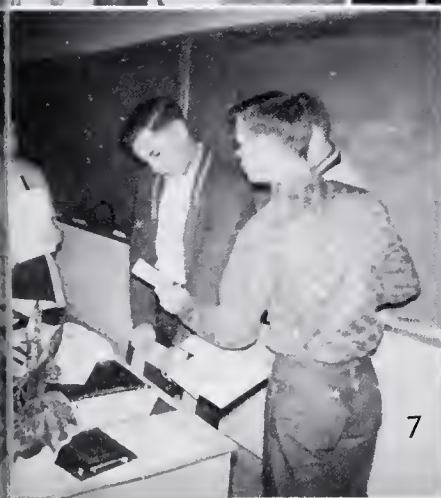

Oak Ridge, Tennessee—Charlotte Holland, Paul Barbour, and Tommy Cloer are cooking up a top-secret atomic project.

Paris, France—Mademoiselle Jo Carole Hobgood, famous hair stylist, is overjoyed at having Fifi, one of her regular customers, receive the award for the most well-groomed poodle in France.

Among our souvenirs

1. Diane Prince brushes up on her plane geometry. 2. Dickie Powell went Cuban at the junior play east party. 3. Posing against one of the many historic monuments they visited in Williamsburg are these juniors. 4. U. S. History students seem to be really interested in their guide's lecture. 5. We bought and ate millions of candy bars from the juniors.

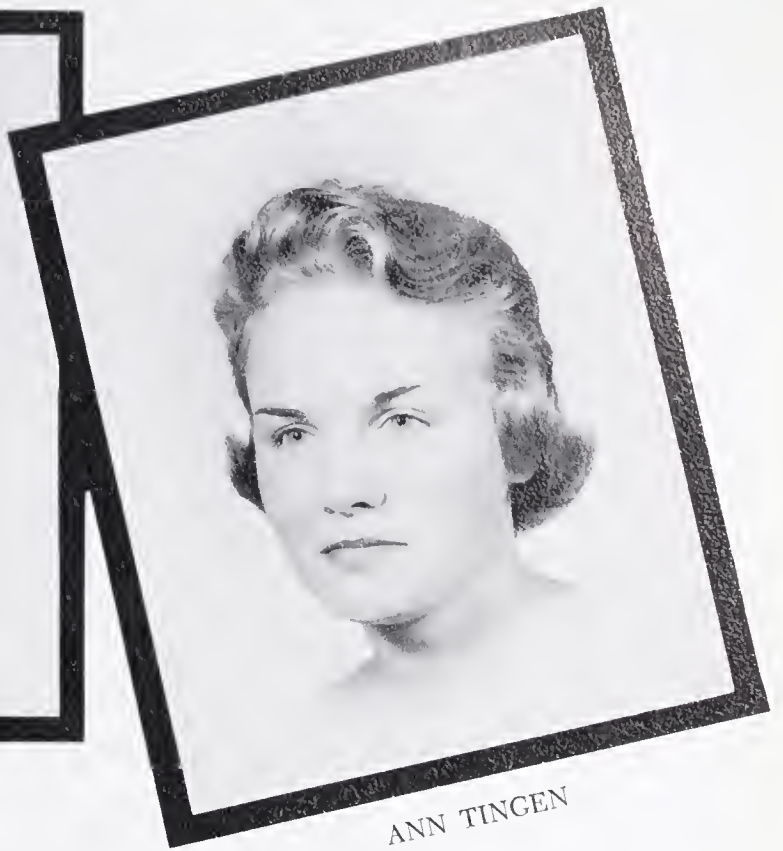

6. These Daisy Maes and Little Abners attended the annual F. H. A.-F. F. A. Hoe Down. 7. An algebra quiz is on the agenda for these frantic freshmen. 8. Senior girls spent six weeks in an adding machine course. 9. Members of the junior play had a lively time at their cast party.

Leadership

Bill Rogers, president, presided over assembly each Monday throughout the year.

Fuquay's answer to democracy is its Student Council, an organization of students elected by their classmates to serve as official student representatives in all important matters concerning the entire school. For this reason the Student Council can be no better than the individual student wants it to be. A successful council must have the complete co-operation of the entire student body.

The Student Council has many objectives and purposes. Among these are establishing and maintaining higher moral standards, developing intelligent leaders and followers, promoting a closer relationship between the student body, the faculty, and the community, creating school spirit, and encouraging co-operation and participation of all students in school activities.

The Student Council offers membership and participation to all, and not just to a select few.

Kathy Ann Talley, Tom Buffaloe, Sara Capps, Linda Ayscue, and Mike Owens served as Beta Club officers this year. Judy Wagstaff was Wake County treasurer, and Mr. Betts was sponsor.

The Fuquay Springs Chapter of the National Beta Club became an even more influential force in student activities this year. Its junior and senior members, selected from among students with good mentality and character, creditable achievement, and commendable attitudes, conducted morning devotionals over the intercommunication system and placed flowers on the stage for chapel. In December the club took potted plants to the Wake County Hospital and caroled at the Kinton Rest Home. Throughout the year faculty members received occasion cards from the group. All members participated in these projects, because they knew they could lead by serving others.

Sara Capps places the Beta key of achievement on the key ring during the fall induction service.

... Where CREDIT IS due

With their traditional attire and green satin badges, the marshals were an essential part of Fuquay's annual baccalaureate and graduation exercises. The junior with the highest scholastic average became chief marshal; then the top four boys and four top girls were selected to receive this honor. These marshals were proud to assist by distributing programs, ushering, and seeing, in general, that the apex of the seniors' high school careers was conducted smoothly.

Fulfilling her duties as a marshal, Sylvia Barbour entertains the mascots.

The work behind the play

Organized to stimulate school spirit and promote good sportsmanship, the Monogram Club is composed of students who have been awarded a varsity letter in any major sport or as a manager.

Each year the Monogram Club manages the concession stand at the football and basketball games and has an annual spring social to honor the new members.

Through the desire and determination of each member, the Monogram Club will continue to be a club of leadership, producing outstanding students in life, as well as in athletics.

Monogram Club officers were Robert Brooks, Wesley Cotten, Judy Wagstaff, and Kay Lee.

Winner of the Randolph Benton Trophy for two consecutive years, Fuquay's Future Teachers plan an annual program of service through which the members may measure their abilities and interests in teaching. Projects conducted by the club this year were practice teaching, participation in American Education Week, and the observance of Teacher Appreciation Day, all of which were aimed at guiding good prospective teachers into the teaching profession.

Wake County's PRIDE

F. T. A. officers this year were Sarah Adams, June Smith, Faye Honeycutt, Tilley Adams, and Sandra Taylor.

As one of the F. T. A. projects, Margaret Hinson teaches these fifth graders.

It's Teacher Appreciation Week, and Mrs. Akins receives a corsage from Judy Pleasant to honor the occasion.

The sound of music

In a diamond formation, the band serenaded the newly-crowned queen and her court during Homecoming.

These officers of the band guided the year's successful activities.

Half-time shows presented by the band were always high lights of our football games.

Fuquay Springs has long been noted for its high school band. Our band has well represented our school and community at numerous parades and contests. Its members are careful to see that the utmost is done to preserve this reputation that has been established.

The band gets its new members from the eighth graders who, the preceding year, were members of the Junior Band. Approximately three concerts are presented each year in addition to a lawn concert, a new feature begun by the band last year. Recently the Band Booster Club has really been working to help raise money to make trips and for new equipment. This has greatly aided the band, and their work is not going unnoticed.

A student receives one half unit for each year of band while he is in high school, but only one unit may be counted toward graduation. He also receives a letter grade as on any other course he may be taking. His grade depends on many aspects of the student—his attitude, musicianship, and participation in the steps system. This system consists of thirty-four steps designed to improve the student's playing.

Our band has done well in the past, but this should not stop our forging ahead to greater achievement. We will continue at the standard set only through diligent toil on the part of the band and our community. Remember the proverb which says, "Nothing great or small can ever be achieved without enthusiasm."
